Prosecutors to charge Cohen

By Tom Hays
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Michael Cohen, President Donald Trump's former personal lawyer, could be charged before the end of the month with bank fraud in his dealings with the taxi industry and with committing other financial crimes, two people familiar with the federal probe said Monday.

The people confirmed reports that federal prosecutors in Manhattan were considering charging Cohen after months of speculation over a case that has been a distraction for the White House with the midterm elections approaching.

The New York Times

reported Sunday, based on anonymous sources, that prosecutors have been focusing on more than $20 million in loans obtained by taxi businesses that Cohen and his family own.

As part of the investigation, prosecutors have subpoenaed records from Sterling National Bank, one of the institutions that loaned Cohen money with his ownership in taxi cabs as collateral, one of the people said. The material was sought because it's suspected Cohen falsified some of the paperwork, the person said.

The people, who weren't authorized to discuss the case and spoke on Monday on condition of anonymity, refused to answer questions about speculation that Cohen still might strike a plea deal with prosecutors requiring his cooperation.

Absent a quick resolution, it's believed that prosecutors would put off a decision on how to go forward with the case until after the election in compliance with an informal Justice Department policy of

Leesburg-based Kingstone will animate the Bible

By Frank Stanfield

LEESBURG — In a task of biblical proportions, Art Ayris set out a decade ago to make the best seller of all time — the Bible — even more interesting by making God's superheroes jump off the pages in comic book form.

Now, the publisher of Kingstone Comics is heralding new changes, saying the company is converting the work into motion comic animation.

Last month, The New York Times published an article reporting that the big-name comic book companies would be streaming their products. "That was really good news to me, because that month and the month before we began animating our comic books.

"It means that we're playing in the same pool that the big boys play in."

DC Universe, one of the biggest comic book companies, and Walt Disney Co., which owns Marvel Entertainment, have announced plans to create their own platforms to connect directly with fans and to compete with Netflix and Amazon Prime, according to the Times article.

Kingstone has signed two contracts to broadcast content to Europe and Central Asia, which will include Turkey and Afghanistan.

OCALA, FLA. Feds probing charges of sex abuse at Florida prison

Federal investigators are looking into allegations of rape, assault, and the smuggling of drugs into a central Florida prison for women.

The Miami Herald reports that about 100 former inmates and relatives of inmates at the Lowell Correctional Institution near Ocala, Florida, attended a town hall meeting on Sunday to talk with the investigators from the U.S. Department of Justice.

The U.S. Department of Justice opened a federal civil rights investigation into sexual abuse of inmates in July.

The federal investigators are examining whether the Florida Department of Corrections ignored complaints of misconduct.

ST. LOUIS Father sues over Missouri fatal 2015 police shooting of son

The father of an 18-year-old killed in a St. Louis police shooting alleges in a wrongful death lawsuit that his son was shot in the back as he ran.

Dennis Ball-Bey says his son, Mansur Ball-Bey, was a church youth leader without a criminal record when he was killed in August 2015. The suit names the city of St. Louis, former police chief Sam Dotson and the two white officers who fired at Ball-Bey, who was black, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reports.

The officers, Ronald Vaughan and Kyle Chandler, told investigators that Mansur Ball-Bey brandished a gun as he fled after police served a warrant at a home.

ATLANTA Daughter struck by train while trying to save mother

Horrified subway riders rushed to save a woman pushed in front of a commuter train in Atlanta, and the woman's daughter was struck by the train while trying to help, witnesses said.

A 28-year-old suspect was in custody after Sunday afternoon's chaos at the city's Midtown Station, the Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority said in a statement.

"We tried to pull them out the track," transit rider Aiesha Bowden told WSB-TV. "The train was coming too fast, it tried to stop but it couldn't."

The 58-year-old mother was pushed into the path of the train, police said in a Monday update on the case. Her daughter, 27, then "jumped on the tracks in an effort to assist her mother and was struck by a train."

Afghan forces free most hostages

By Amir Shah and Rahim Faiez
The Associated Press

KABUL, Afghanistan — Afghan forces rescued nearly 150 people Monday, including women and children, hours after the Taliban ambushed a convoy of buses and abducted them. The quick response marked a rare if limited battlefield success for the troops after weeks of unrelenting insurgent attacks.

The militants escaped with 21 captives following the battle in Kunduz province, and officials said tribal elders were trying to negotiate their release. Esmatullah Muradi, a spokesman for the governor in the northern province, said the Taliban have demanded the national identifications of the captives to determine their fate.

The identities of the captives have not been made public, but Mohammad Yusouf Ayubi, the head of the provincial council, said the insurgents likely targeted the three buses to try to abduct civil servants or members of the security forces.

The Taliban have been at war with the U.S.-backed Afghan government for nearly 17 years, and have stepped up attacks in recent years, seizing rural districts and carrying out major assaults against security forces and government compounds on an almost daily basis.

Earlier this month, the insurgents launched a coordinated assault on Ghazni, a strategic city only 120 kilometers (75 miles) from the capital, Kabul. They seized several neighborhoods, and it took security forces, aided by U.S. airstrikes and advisers, more than five days to drive them out. The battle for the city killed at least 100 security forces and 35 civilians, according to Afghan officials. The Defense Ministry said about 200 militants were killed.

In the latest attack, the Taliban stopped the buses in the Khan Abad district and ordered the passengers to come with them, according to Nasrat Rahimi, deputy spokesman for the Interior Ministry. Afghan forces responded quickly and were able to free 149 people and kill at least seven Taliban fighters, he said.

The passengers were all from Takhar and Badakhshan provinces in the north and were on their way to Kabul for this week's Eid al-Adha holiday, according to Abdul Rahman Aqtash, police chief in Takhar province.

The ambush came a day after President Ashraf Ghani proposed a holiday cease-fire, saying it would be conditional on the Taliban halting attacks. He suggested extending the truce all the way to Nov. 20, when Muslims will celebrate the birthday of the Prophet Muhammad.

A cease-fire during a major Muslim holiday in June brought a rare respite from the violence in most areas and saw Taliban fighters celebrate in the streets alongside security forces and civilians. But the Taliban rejected a government offer to extend that truce and soon resumed the attacks.

The Taliban have yet to respond formally to the latest truce offer. Zabihullah Mujahid, a spokesman for the insurgent group, said it was still discussing it and would announce its decision soon.

In a message released Saturday in honor of the upcoming holiday, Taliban leader Maulvi Haibatullah Akhunzadah said there would be no peace in Afghanistan as long as the "foreign occupation" continues and reiterated that the group will only negotiate directly with the United States, which it blames for the 17-year war.

The U.S. and NATO officially ended their combat mission at the end of 2014 but have repeatedly come to the aid of Afghan forces in recent years to prevent the Taliban from advancing into major cities. The U.S. has long insisted on an "Afghan-led" peace process between the government and the Taliban but recently has indicated it would be open to direct talks with the insurgents.

LEESBURG Troopers: Leesburg woman hit pedestrian, continued to work

The Florida Highway Patrol charged a woman Saturday afternoon with striking a pedestrian with the side mirror of her car, then leaving the injured man on the side of the road.

Santrel Morelli, 20, of Leesburg, was arrested after a witness reported that a silver Toyota had struck a pedestrian walking south on the west shoulder of Radio Road near Pleasant View Drive. The witness also provided the license plate number.

The witness reported that the driver stopped on a side road, got out of the vehicle, "walked around" and got back in the car and continued driving.

A trooper talked to Hunter Lee Stanley, 23, who went to Leesburg Regional Medical Center to be treated for his injuries. The trooper then tracked down the registered owner of the vehicle, who said her granddaughter was driving the car and that she worked at Subway.

Morelli told police she "was running late to work, and I was going to call it in but I wasn't sure where it was located."

She was booked into the Lake County Jail on a $5,000 bond.

LEESBURG School Board approves sale of former Dabney Elementary site

The Lake County School Board voted unanimously on Monday to sell the property formerly occupied by Dabney Elementary School.

With the contract approved, the property exchange and payment can now move on to the final stages.

The land is being sold to Tony M. Bengé Jr., of Bengé Development Corp, for $725,000. School Board Chairwoman Stephanie Luke has said the proceeds will probably be used to purchase new land for other Lake County schools.

The plans for the 4.4-acre property are unknown, but Bengé said previously that he intends to meet with community leaders to determine the best use of the land.

Dabney Elementary School was closed in 2008 after it was deemed too small to serve its population, and it was demolished in 2015 to make the land more attractive to buyers.

Previous attempts to sell the land have never panned out, including a similar sale to the Barclay Group, which also managed to get its contract approved by the School Board.

TALLAHASSEE More than 1 million ballots already cast in Florida primary

The Florida Division of Elections website says that so far more than 861,000 voters have mailed in their ballots. Nearly 163,000 people have voted at early voting polling places.

Early voting is under way at all 67 counties.

Florida's primary is Aug. 28. The top races are the gubernatorial primaries but there are also Cabinet primaries as well as many contested congressional races.

Former U.S. Rep. Gwen Graham, former Miami Beach Mayor Philip Levine, Tallahassee Mayor Andrew Gillum and businessmen Jeff Greene and Chris King are the Democratic candidates for governor. Agriculture Commissioner Adam Putnam and U.S. Rep. Ron DeSantis are the Republicans.

Judge blocks proposed schools amendment

By Lloyd Dunkelberger
News Service of Florida

TALLAHASSEE — A Leon County circuit judge Monday knocked a proposed education constitutional amendment off the November ballot, saying the wording failed to inform voters of its impact on the creation of charter schools.

The proposed amendment, placed on the ballot by the Constitution Revision Commission, would impose eight-year term limits on school board members and would require the promotion of "civic literacy" in public schools.

But the provision that drew a legal challenge from the League of Women Voters of Florida would have allowed the state to operate and control public schools "not established by the school board," wording that opponents said would have led to the expansion of charter schools. The proposal was aimed at overturning a 2008 appellate court decision that found the Legislature's creation of a statewide commission to authorize charter schools

Shocking stat for manatees

In first 8 months of year, beloved animal's death toll surpasses 2017

By Tamara Lush
Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG — This year hasn't been a good one for the Florida manatee.

According to state wildlife statistics, there have been more manatee deaths so far this year than all of last year.

A total of 540 manatees have died through Aug. 12, compared to 538 in 2017. Experts blame a cold snap at the beginning of the year and the toxic red tide algae in the Gulf of Mexico for the fatalities.

"We expect the red tide related manatee death toll to rise," said Jeff Ruch, executive director for Public Employees for Environmental Responsibility, a D.C.-based nonprofit. "We suspect there are a number of carcasses that have not been reported yet."

Statistics from the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission say that red tide is to blame for at least 97 manatee deaths. Red tide is a natural occurrence that happens due to the presence of nutrients in the water and an organism called a dinoflagellate.

The toxic algae bloom has overrun Florida's southern Gulf Coast this summer, devastating sea life and driving people from the water. Over the weekend, television newscasts warned viewers before they showed graphic video of dead manatees in the water.

In Lee County alone, authorities have removed 2.7 tons of dead fish from the beaches.

While manatees don't eat fish — they are herbivores that eat sea grass, among other greenery — they are affected by the red tide in various ways.

They get a triple whammy because they get a toxin through their skin, inhale the toxin when they breathe, and they eat the plants that have the toxic algae on them, said Marilyn Levy Odea, a conservationist and Florida master naturalist who volunteers at a science center in Lee County, along Florida's southwest coast.

She points out that they're also slow-moving creatures and may not be as quick as other sea creatures to avoid the swath of red tide that's hugging the coastline.

Experts say it's likely that 2018 will rival 2013, when 723 manatees died.

"For many years, the leading causes of manatee deaths was collisions with boats," said Ruch. This year, only 79 manatees have died due to boat injuries.

There are approximately 6,000 manatees in the waters off Florida, so losing 10 percent of the population is alarming.

The manatee is native to Florida and is considered

Clermont makes fixes to Victory Pointe to combat erosion

By Linda Charlton
Correspondent

Editor's Note: This article is being republished today because much of it was omitted from Monday's edition

CLERMONT — Victory Pointe was the first order of business at a recent Clermont City Council meeting, as members discussed the July 27 grand opening, erosion issues that surfaced days after and putting the final touches on the $10.2-million stormwater and event project.

City Manager Darren Gray said Victory Pointe was "substantially complete" at the time of opening, but Capital Projects Director James Kinzler predicts that all the final touches, including permission from the water management district to discharge water into Lake Minneola, will be complete by the end of August.

The erosion problem surfaced at Victory Pointe's newly laid sand beach when three days of heavy rains drove the sand down to the barriers and, in some cases, beyond them. Kinzler assured council members staff is working to stabilize the slope and sod and he's monitoring the situation daily.

One change that was already made was the city laid additional sod on the lake side of the South Lake Trail. Originally, there was only about 4-foot-wide strip of sod, now there's roughly 12 feet. Now, for much of the 340-foot stretch of sand, the steepest part of the slope toward the lake is covered in sod.

City spokeswoman Doris Bloodsworth said the landscaping plan had always called for 12 feet of sod there.

"We are considering some other erosion-prevention measures, such as an additional silt fence or hay bales," Bloodsworth said in a press release. "We plan to leave the silt fences in place until the sod is mature and stabilized and we are assured that the sand is not going to wash out or flow into the lake. We will continue to monitor and assess the situation and will pursue

Lawsuit revived at Disney

By Jim Saunders
News Service of Florida

TALLAHASSEE — In a detailed, 65-page ruling, a federal appeals court Friday said a trial is needed in a legal battle about whether Disney theme parks have taken adequate steps to meet the needs of customers who have autism and cannot wait long times for rides.

A lower-court judge had granted summary judgment for Walt Disney Parks and Resorts — ruling without holding a full-blown trial — in lawsuits filed on behalf of people with autism. But a three-judge panel of the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Friday sent the case back and said some key issues need to be resolved in a trial.

The appeals court decision came in 30 consolidated cases that involve allegations under the Americans with Disabilities Act and deal with Disney parks in Florida and California. The decision does not resolve the underlying issues, but it gives the plaintiffs another chance to try to prove allegations that accommodations at the parks are not adequate.

The cases focus on problems that people with autism have in waiting for rides and their need for pre-set orders of events, with the appeals court saying that parents had testified about autistic children having "meltdowns" when they wait for rides or routines are disrupted.

"Plaintiffs allege that their severe disabilities include an inability to comprehend the concept of time, defer gratification, and wait for rides, as well as strict adherence to a pre-set routine of rides in a specific order," said Friday's ruling, written by appeals-court Judge Frank Hull and joined by judges Kevin Newsom and C. Ashley Royal. "Plaintiffs therefore contend that access to all of Disney's rides must be both nearly immediate and in each plaintiff's individual, pre-set order to accommodate fully their impairments."

But Disney has argued it properly accommodates the needs of people with autism through a "Disability Access Service" program that it began in 2013. The appeals court said the program provides "significant benefits," including allowing was unconstitutional.

“The failure to use the term voters would understand, ‘charter schools,’ as well as the use of a phrase that has no established meaning under Florida law, fails to inform voters of the chief purpose and effect of this proposal.” Circuit Judge John Cooper wrote in a 12-page ruling, removing Amendment 8 from the Nov. 6 ballot.

Cooper called the challenged provision “a significant change” that was not explained by the Amendment 8 ballot summary, which is wording that voters would see when they go to the polls.

“The current Constitution and implementing laws provide district school boards the exclusive right to make the initial determination of whether schools, charter or not, are needed and desirable in their counties,” Cooper wrote. “Without understanding the current role of school boards in approving new schools, voters cannot understand the important change they are making to local democratic control of education.”

He also said the ballot measure “incorrectly implies” that it is strengthening or maintaining the school boards’ role “instead of weakening it by removing a power.”

But the legal fight about Amendment 8 could be far from over, with the expectation that Cooper’s ruling will be appealed. Erika Donalds, a Constitution Revision Commission member who was the key proponent of Amendment 8, called the court’s ruling “disappointing.”

Donalds, a Collier County School Board member who leads the group 8isGreat.org, which is promoting the amendment, said the League of Women Voters “fundamentally opposes empowering families to choose the education setting that best fits their child.”

“Despite the speculation and bunk they’ve spread, I hope voters will be able to make their own decision in November,” Donalds said in a statement. “It is disgusting how many misrepresentations the opposition is willing to put forth to block student-centered school choice options.”

Cooper said voters would have had “a clearer choice” if the Constitution Revision Commission had advanced the charter-school provision as “standalone revision,” rather than grouping it with two other constitutional changes. The commission, which meets every 20 years, is not bound by the one-subject mandate that applies to constitutional changes advanced by the Legislature or by voter petition.

“It chose to bundle the three proposals together to increase, in its view, their chances of passage,” Cooper wrote. “But this court can only permit it to do so if it fully and accurately described all three proposals in the ballot title and description. That it failed to do.”

Cooper also found the ballot measure to be “affirmatively misleading,” since the summary talks about giving the state the power to operate and control schools, but it does not mention authority could be given to other entities, including private companies.

He said the measure was “conspicuously silent about who or what” would be responsible for schools not established by local school boards.

“Contrary to the language of the ballot summary, the amendment was intended to permit that power be given to a wide variety of third parties, potentially including private entities,” Cooper wrote.

Opponents of the measure praised Cooper’s decision.

“Amendment 8 would have used the feel-good language of civic education and term limits to lure voters into voting ‘yes,’ while wresting local control of schools,” Patricia Brigham, president of the League of Women Voters, said in a statement. “We were confident that the courts would see through the charade and are thrilled that they agree.”

Along with Cooper’s ruling, Amendment 8 is one of six Constitution Revision Commission ballot proposals facing a separate challenge at the Florida Supreme Court. That lawsuit is asking for the state’s highest court to remove the amendments from the November ballot, arguing that the commission overstepped its authority by combining multiple constitutional changes into single ballot items.

A circuit judge has already ordered the removal of Amendment 13, another commission proposal that would ban commercial greyhound racing in Florida. That decision is now being appealed at the state Supreme Court.

In total, 13 proposed state constitutional amendments were placed on the Nov. 6 ballot, including the eight advanced by the commission and five advanced by the Legislature or through petition drives. Each amendment would require support from at least 60 percent of the voters to be enacted.

other anti-erosion measures if necessary.”

Victory Pointe’s event venue was also re-graded. Workers onsite Friday said stormwater drains were built, but water was not flowing into them properly. By re-grading the area to properly direct the runoff to the drains, there is less water to running down to the beach and into the lake.

Additional landscaping is most noticeable in the stream that connects the stormwater ponds to Lake Minneola. Gray said they’ll soon be getting a final inspection of the elevator at the observation tower and install handrails at the boardwalk over the weir that separates the two ponds.

Gray also put to rest rumors that there wouldn’t be a sand beach. “It had always been a part of the Victory Pointe plans.”

Local activist Charlene Forth protested the sand beach by reading from a 20-year-old newspaper article with the headline “Adding a white, sandy people with disabilities to get scheduled times for rides; allowing them to avoid having to physically stand in line for rides; and allowing them to immediately enter rides that have waits of less than 15 minutes.

In a 2016 summary-judgment ruling for Disney, U.S. District Judge Anne Conway wrote that Disney began the Disability Access Service program to replace an earlier program that had been abused by park-goers, including by people who did not need special accommodations. Ruling in a case whose plaintiff was identified by the initials A.L., Conway wrote that the Disability Access Service program and what are known as “readmission” passes “afford plaintiff a similar, or better, experience as those not needing them.”

“Plaintiff was given an opportunity to experience Magic Kingdom in a similar manner as guests that do not need accommodations. ... In the present case, nondisabled guests visit Magic Kingdom for rides and attractions that most of them have to wait more than an hour to experience,” wrote Conway, a judge in the federal Middle District of Florida. “Comparing this to plaintiff’s experience, DAS and readmission passes allow him access to those same rides in a fraction of the time.”

The appeals court Friday said the plaintiffs are seeking a maximum wait of 10 to 15 minutes for all rides. The ruling acknowledged that the Disabled Access Service program allows people with autism to access rides quicker than other park customers but indicated that doesn’t resolve the legal questions.

“Although the DAS card is a significant benefit, we conclude that factual disputes still exist about behavioral features of plaintiffs’ impairments that make it more difficult to evaluate whether the DAS program provides a like experience (as other customers have),” the ruling said. “Plaintiffs’ evidence posits that waiting for rides in the over-stimulated environment of a theme park, even virtually with the DAS card, is beyond the capacity of plaintiffs given the specific and severe nature of their disabilities.”

NOTICE OF HEARING TO IMPOSE AND PROVIDE FOR COLLECTION OF SOLID WASTE SERVICE SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS

Notice is hereby given that the City Council of the City of Mascotte, will conduct a public hearing to consider reimposing solid waste and recyclable materials special assessments against certain improved residential properties located within the incorporated area of the City to fund the cost of solid waste and recyclable materials collection and disposal services, facilities and programs provided to such properties and to authorize collection of such assessments on the tax bill.

The hearing will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, September 12, 2018, in the Council Chambers, Tedder-Thomas Memorial Civic Center, 121 North Sunset Avenue, Mascotte, Florida, for the purpose of receiving public comment on the proposed assessments. All affected property owners have a right to appear at the hearing and to file written objections with the City Council within 20 days of this notice. This public hearing may be continued to a future date or dates. The times, places, and dates of any continuances of a public hearing shall be announced during the public hearing without any further published notice.

If a person decides to appeal any decision made by the City Council with respect to any matter considered at the hearing, such person will need a record of the proceedings and may need to ensure that a verbatim record is made, including the testimony and evidence upon which the appeal is to be made. In accordance with the Americans with Disabilities Act, persons needing a special accommodation or an interpreter to participate in this proceeding should contact the City Clerk’s office at (352) 429-3341, at least 2 days prior to the date of the hearing. The City’s website is www.cityofmascotte.com.

The assessments will be generally computed by multiplying the number of dwelling units on each parcel by the rate of assessment. The rate of assessment for the upcoming fiscal year and future fiscal years shall be $246.00 per dwelling unit on each parcel of property. Copies of the Master Service Assessment Ordinance, the Amended and Restated Initial Assessment Resolution, Preliminary Rate Resolution for Solid Waste Services, the preliminary assessment roll showing the amount of the assessment to be imposed against each parcel of property, and other legal documentation relating to the assessments are available for inspection at the office of the City Manager, located at City Hall, 100 East Myers Boulevard, Mascotte, Florida, during regular business hours, 7:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

The assessments will be collected on the ad valorem tax bill to be mailed in November 2018, as authorized by section 197.3632, Florida Statutes. Failure to pay the assessments will cause a tax certificate to be issued against the property which may result in a loss of title.

If you have any questions, please contact the City Manager’s Office at (352) 429-3341, during regular business hours, 7:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

The Kingstone Bible is already the biggest comic book adaptation, Ayris said. It is published in 29 languages and growing by a language per month. Languages include Arabic and Mandarin, and Farsi, the language of Iran.

As if Ayris needed any more incentive to stick his big toe into the digital pool, he said he was “really lit up,” when he read a story in “The Christian Post” headlined, “Batman No Longer Believes in God: DC Comics Turns Him from Christian to Atheist.”

Comics, which came out of New York 80 years ago, were drawn by artists from the Old World. “They had a sense of righteousness and justice,” he said.

“What many people don’t realize is that Iran is now experiencing a significant spiritual awakening and keen interest in the truths of the Bible. Meanwhile, here in America, the fictional icon Bruce Wayne turns from the faith his parents espoused in the newest issue of Batman. The irony is certainly not lost on us,” he noted in a press release statement.

“Obviously, I’m passionate about the Bible,” said Ayris, who reads it every day. “One of the things I do realize is that for people of non-faith it is a daunting, intimidating book full of hard-to-understand words, timelines and what happened when.”

Kingstone also made individual comic books, such as the crucifixion of Christ, shown here. [CINDY SHARP/CORRESPONDENT]

The entire Kingstone collection is on display at the headquarters in Leesburg. [CINDY SHARP/CORRESPONDENT]

However, people are quick to pick up a comic book, he said.

To ensure that happens with Kingstone, Ayris has hired artists who have worked for Marvel and DC Comics.

“In a short period of time, people can understand the tenets of the Bible,” he said.

Kingstone’s original market research suggested the comics would attract male adolescents, but it has picked up a following among girls and adults. “We have a big social media demographic with males ages 18 to 30,” he said.

It is changing lives, too. He said he recently received word from a woman in Australia who said her husband has totally changed. “He’s joined us for prayers, devotions and church,” she wrote.

“I asked what happened, and she said he read about Christ in the Kingstone Bible,” he said.

“The bottom line is, we want people to understand the Bible.”

cover-up. He blasted the clerical culture that has been blamed for the crisis, with church leaders more concerned about their own reputations than the safety of children.

“We showed no care for the little ones,” Francis wrote. “We abandoned them.”

But Francis alone can sanction bishops and he offered no hint that he would change the Vatican’s longstanding practice of giving religious superiors a pass when they botch abuse cases or are negligent in protecting their flocks.

He said he was aware of the “effort and work being carried out in various parts of the world” to ensure children are protected and hold accountable those who commit abuse and cover it up.

But he made no reference to what the Vatican plans to do, saying only: “We have delayed in applying these actions and sanctions that are so necessary, yet I am confident that they will help to guarantee a greater culture of care in the present and future.”

The letter was viewed by abuse survivors as little more than recycled rhetoric that fails to acknowledge the Vatican’s own role in turning a blind eye to predatory priests and fomenting a culture of secrecy that has allowed crimes to go unpunished for decades.

“That culture was overseen by #Vatican & codified into its laws,” tweeted Colm O’Gorman, a prominent Irish abuse victim who is organizing a solidarity demonstration of survivors in Dublin during Francis’ visit. “He needs to name & own that.”

avoiding bringing prosecutions that could be seen as political and influence voters.

Both the U.S. attorney’s office and an attorney for Cohen, Lanny Davis, declined to comment Monday. A spokesman for Sterling National Bank declined to comment.

Cohen had gained notoriety as Trump’s loyal “fixer” before FBI agents raided his offices and a hotel where he was staying while renovations were being done on his apartment in a Trump-developed building.

Prosecutors were initially silent about why Cohen was under investigation. Some details became public after lawyers for Cohen and Trump asked a judge to temporarily prevent investigators from viewing some of the seized material, on the grounds that it was protected by attorney-client privilege.

The search of Cohen’s files sought bank records, communications with the Trump campaign and information on hush money payments made in 2016 to two women: former Playboy model Karen McDougal, who received $150,000, and the porn actress Stormy Daniels, who got $130,000.

At the time, Trump branded the raid “a witch hunt,” an assault on attorney-client privilege and a politically motivated attack by enemies in the FBI.

which scans for “threats of harm” while promising to maintain the privacy of social media users. It does this by broadly scanning social media sites rather than targeting accounts based on their group affiliations or locations.

It cannot monitor the content of private social media accounts or scan websites that require a password to see posts, according to school officials.

The software works by scanning for key words online. When it detects key words in combinations that suggest a possible threat, it sends an alert to the client.

Upon receiving the alert, it’s up to the client and authorities to figure out what to do with the information.

With the uptick in school shootings in the United States, the Valentine’s

Day shooting at Marjory Stoneman Douglas being the closest to home, schools are evaluating a host of ramped-up security measures – from hardening schools with bulletproof windows and doors to stationing police on campuses and identifying threats early.

That’s the object of Social Sentinel. The software focuses on social media because those tools are especially popular with students.

In some cases, threats were posted to social media prior to mass shootings and other violent attacks, and authorities have been criticized for missing the warning signs.

Lake County Schools would contract for the service for three years to monitor for threats to its schools and students. The cost would be $70,000 a year.

Among the company’s other clients are the Seminole and Flagler County school districts here in Florida.

NOTICE OF HEARING TO IMPOSE AND PROVIDE FOR COLLECTION OF NON-AD VALOREM SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS TO FUND STREET LIGHTING SERVICES

Notice is hereby given that the City Council of the City of Mascotte, will conduct a public hearing to consider adoption of a annual assessment resolution related to the provision by the City of street lighting services. The street lighting final assessment resolution will provide for imposition of special assessments, sometimes characterized as non-ad valorem assessments, against certain improved properties located within the incorporated area of the City to fund the cost of street lighting services provided to such properties and to authorize collection of such assessments by the Lake County Tax Collector pursuant to Florida law and City ordinance.

The hearing will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, September 12, 2018, in the Council Chambers, Tedder-Thomas Memorial Civic Center, 121 North Sunset Avenue, Mascotte, Florida, for the purpose of receiving public comment on the proposed assessments. All affected property owners have a right to appear at the hearing and to file written objections with the City Council within 20 days of this notice. This public hearing may be continued to a future date or dates. The times, places, and dates of any continuances of a public hearing shall be announced during the public hearing without any further published notice. If a person decides to appeal any decision made by the City Council with respect to any matter considered at the hearing, such person will need a record of the proceedings and may need to ensure that a verbatim record is made, including the testimony and evidence upon which the appeal is to be made. In accordance with the Americans with Disabilities Act, persons needing a special accommodation or an interpreter to participate in this proceeding should contact the City Clerk’s office at (352) 429-3341, at least 2 days prior to the date of the hearing. The City’s website is www.cityofmascotte.com.

The amount of the Street Lighting Services Assessments imposed against affected parcels will be based upon the number of Equivalent Residential Units (“ERUs”) attributable to each tax parcel. By definition, one ERU equals 1,218 square feet, which is the size of the average single family residential building in the City. Each residential parcel subject to the charges will be assigned one (1) ERU. The number of ERUs attributable to affected non-residential parcels will be computed by dividing the non-residential building square footage by 1,218 square feet. If approved by the City Council at the conclusion of the public hearing, the Street Lighting Services Assessment will be imposed at an annual rate not to exceed $ 60.00 per ERU for the upcoming fiscal year and future fiscal years.

Copies of the Master Service Assessment Ordinance, Resolution 2017-06-604 (the Initial Assessment Resolution for Street Lighting Services Assessments), the preliminary street lighting assessment roll showing the amount of the assessment to be imposed against each affected parcel of property, and the legal documentation relating to the assessments are available for inspection at the office of the City Manager, located at City Hall, 100 East Myers Boulevard, Mascotte, Florida, during regular business hours, 7:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

The assessments will be collected on the ad valorem tax bill to be mailed in November 2018, as authorized by section 197.3632, Florida Statutes. Failure to pay the assessments will cause a tax certificate to be issued against the property which may result in a loss of title.

If you have any questions, please contact the City Manager’s Office at (352) 429-3341, during regular business hours, 7:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

NOTICE OF HEARING TO IMPOSE AND PROVIDE FOR COLLECTION OF FIRE PROTECTION SERVICES SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS

Notice is hereby given that the City Council of the City of Mascotte, will conduct a public hearing to consider reimposing fire protection special assessments for the provision of fire protection services within the City for the Fiscal Year beginning October 1, 2018.

The hearing will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, September 12, 2018, in the Council Chambers, Tedder-Thomas Memorial Civic Center, 121 North Sunset Avenue, Mascotte, Florida, for the purpose of receiving public comment on the proposed assessments. All affected property owners have a right to appear at the hearing and to file written objections with the City Council within 20 days of this notice. This public hearing may be continued to a future date or dates. The times, places, and dates of any continuances of a public hearing shall be announced during the public hearing without any further published notice.

If a person decides to appeal any decision made by the City Council with respect to any matter considered at the hearing, such person will need a record of the proceedings and may need to ensure that a verbatim record is made, including the testimony and evidence upon which the appeal is to be made. In accordance with the Americans with Disabilities Act, persons needing a special accommodation or an interpreter to participate in this proceeding should contact the City Clerk’s office at (352) 429-3341, at least 2 days prior to the date of the hearing. The City’s website is www.cityofmascotte.com.

The assessments for each parcel of property will be based upon each parcel’s Property Use classification and the total number of billing units attributed to that parcel. The following table reflects the proposed fire protection assessment schedule being considered by City Council:

Fire Protection Assessment Rates (40.5% of Assessable Costs)

Property Use Category	Rate
Residential	$115.00 (per dwelling unit)
Non-Residential	$ 0.15 (per square foot)
Vacant Land	$40.00 (per parcel)

Copies of the Ordinance, the Preliminary Rate Resolution initiating the annual process of updating the assessment roll and reimposing the fire protection assessment, the preliminary assessment roll for the upcoming fiscal year, and other documentation related to proposed fire services assessments for the upcoming fiscal year are available for inspection at the City Manager’s office located at City Hall, 100 East Myers Boulevard, Mascotte, Florida, during regular business hours, 7:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

The assessments will be collected on the ad valorem tax bill to be mailed in November 2018, as authorized by section 197.3632, Florida Statutes. Failure to pay the assessments will cause a tax certificate to be issued against the property which may result in a loss of title.

If you have any questions, please contact the City Manager’s Office at (352) 429-3341, during regular business hours, 7:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

BRIEF CASE

WASHINGTON Economists: Some Trump policies could slow growth

U.S. business economists are concerned about the risks of some of President Donald Trump's economic policies, saying they fear his tariffs and higher budget deficits could eventually slow the economy.

More than 90 percent of economists surveyed by the National Association for Business Economics in a report being released Monday said they think the Trump administration's current and threatened tariffs will harm the economy.

The administration has imposed tariffs on goods from many of America's main trading partners — from China and Europe to Mexico and Canada.

CARACAS, VENEZUELA Conoco: Venezuela will pay $2B arbitration

U.S. oil giant ConocoPhillips says it has reached an agreement with Venezuela's state-owned oil company to recover nearly $2 billion it was awarded as part of a decade-old expropriation dispute. Monday's statement from Houston-based Conoco says that PDVSA has agreed to recognize the judgment by an international arbitration panel and will make the first $500 million payment within 90 days and the rest over a period of some four years.

JERUSALEM PepsiCo buys SodaStream for $3.2B

PepsiCo bought carbonated drink maker SodaStream for $3.2 billion on Monday, a move the beverage giant hopes will further help it adjust as consumers drink less traditional soda and opt more for flavored waters and other drinks.

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The bull market in U.S. stocks is about to become the longest in history.

If stocks don't drop significantly by the close of trading Wednesday, the bull market that began in March 2009 will have lasted nine years, five months and 13 days, a record that few would have predicted when the market struggled to find its footing after a 50 percent plunge during the financial crisis.

The long rally has added trillions of dollars to household wealth, helping the economy, and stands as a testament to the ability of large U.S. companies to squeeze out profits in tough times and confidence among investors as they shrugged off repeated crises and kept buying.

"There was no manic trading, there was no panic buying or selling," said Jack Ablin, chief investment officer of Cresset Wealth Advisors. "It's been pretty steady."

The question now is when the rally will end. The Federal Reserve is undoing many of the stimulative measures that supported the market, including keeping interest rates near zero. There are also mounting threats to global trade that have unsettled investors.

For such an enduring bull market, it shares little of the hallmarks of prior rallies.

Unlike earlier rallies, individual investors have largely sat out after getting burned by two crashes in less than a decade. Trading has been lackluster, with few shares exchanging hands each day. Private companies have shown little enthusiasm, too, with fewer selling stock in initial public offerings than in previous bull runs.

Yet this bull market has been remarkably resilient. After several blows that might have killed off a less robust rally — fears of a eurozone collapse, plunging oil prices, a U.S. credit downgrade, President Donald Trump's trade fights — investors soon returned to buying, avoiding a 20 percent drop in stocks that by common definition marks the end of bull markets.

"I don't think anyone could have predicted the length and strength of this bull market," said David Lebovitz, a global market strategist at JPMorgan Asset Management.

One of the market's biggest winners in recent years, Facebook, wasn't even publicly traded when the bull market began. Facebook's huge run-up of more than 350 percent since going public in 2012, Apple's steady march to $1 trillion in value, and huge gains by other tech companies like Netflix have helped push the broader market higher.

Since the rally officially began on March 9, 2009, the Standard and Poor's 500 has risen 321 percent. In the 1990s bull market, the current record holder for the longest, stocks rose 417 percent.

From the start, the Federal Reserve was a big force pushing markets higher. It slashed short-term borrowing rates to zero, then began buying trillions of dollars of bonds to push longer-term rates down, too. Investors frustrated with tiny interest payments on bonds felt they had no alternative but to pile into stocks.

Companies moved fast to adapt to the post-financial-crisis world of sluggish U.S. growth.

They slashed costs and kept wage growth low, squeezing profits out of barely growing sales. They bought back huge amounts of their own stock and expanded their sales overseas, particularly to China's booming economy. Profit margins reached record levels, as wages sunk to record lows as measured against the size of economy.

"What people missed was how quickly U.S. corporations were restructuring and right-sizing themselves to regain profitability," said money manager James Abate, who publicly urged investors to start buying stocks in early 2009 when most were dumping them. "It was really a catalyst for turning things around."

China's surging growth helped the market, too. Its boom drove up the price of oil and other commodities, helping to lift stocks of U.S. natural resource companies — for a while at least.

Then came a downgrade of the U.S. credit rating in August 2011, which caused stocks to swoon, and 2013 brought another fall as Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke talked of easing off stimulus policies. In the second half 2014, oil plunged 50 percent, which rattled investors again.

Profits started falling the next year, but investors kept their nerve and didn't sell and waited for profits to rise again. In 2016, stocks gained 10 percent then jumped 19 percent the next year. Since the start of 2018, they have risen 6.6 percent, boosted by surging profits following the massive cut in corporate tax rates earlier this year.

Several dangers threaten the rally.

The Fed has hiked its benchmark lending rate twice since January, and is expected raise it twice more by the end of the year.

Stocks could suffer as higher interest on bonds convinces investors to start shifting money into this safer alternative. Higher rates also increase costs for business and make expanding operations more difficult.

More worrisome, rising rates can trigger recessions, which often kill bull markets. Three of the past five recessions were preceded by rate hikes by the Federal Reserve. With stocks richly priced, there isn't much room for things to go wrong.

The prices investors are paying per share for companies are 2.2 times revenue per share, near historic peaks. And prices compared to long-term earnings are much higher than in 2007 before the market crashed.

For all its longevity and gains, the final verdict on the bull market won't be known until it ends.

The financial crisis of 2008 that ended the last bull market laid bare just how much debt and risk-taking had fueled gains in the previous seven years. The dot-com bust that ended the 90s rally showed how reckless investors had been.

This time, many of the unanswered questions concern the Fed's monetary stimulus.

How much did it help boost stocks, and thus the broader economy? Will the gains it helped manufacture prove ephemeral? What are the long-term costs of its unprecedented economic rescue effort as it faces the tricky task of unwinding its stimulus program?

Another question is the wisdom of so many buybacks. Companies have spent trillions in recent years repurchasing their own stock, which has helped lift prices in the short term but does nothing to expand operations, train workers and generally improve their business. Many of the purchases were made with borrowed money, adding to already sizable debts.

Planned baby name renews pain of tragic loss for family

DEAR ABBY: I come from a small, close family. Last year, we suffered a devastating loss. My cousin and her two children were killed in a car accident. We have all been profoundly affected by this loss, especially my aunt and uncle.

Fast forward: Another cousin is pregnant with her second child. She wants to name her daughter "Daisy" because she wants all her children to have flower-themed names. "Daisy" is the name of one of the children who died. I, and others in the family, are upset by her decision because her reason for choosing the name has nothing to do with honoring our lost family member.

I understand no one "owns" a baby name, and she can choose whatever name she wants for any reason. But I am having trouble getting past the fact that I'll see this child at family gatherings and have to call her by my dead cousin's name for no reason other than it was a cute flower name.

JEANNE PHILLIPS

DEAR ABBY

My cousin is set on using this name despite family protests, and I can't help but foresee bitterness ahead for us when we've already dealt with so much. What, if anything, can we do to make this situation more positive? -- NAME GAME IN NEW YORK

DEAR NAME GAME: Your cousin appears to have the empathy of a garden snail. Did it occur to anyone in the family to suggest to her that there are other flower names besides Daisy -- Dalia, Daphne or even Desert Rose? (Her nickname could be "Desi," which is cute.) If you haven't, please do before the baby arrives. However, if she refuses to change her mind, it's time for you to start memorizing the Serenity Prayer. DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 22 years. He's a diamond in the rough. My grown children, three boys, have always just tolerated him. They say he talks too much, doesn't listen and still treats the younger two like children. I know he can be overbearing at times.

They have now ganged up and will no longer allow the grandchildren to come stay with me. They say my husband is too harsh in correcting them, which isn't true. The only time he is loud and fast to correct is if the parents aren't here to do it. They have offered no alternative solution.

Two have expressed to my husband how they feel. My husband is trying to acknowledge their feelings and wants to do better. How do we proceed as a family? I'm afraid they will withhold the grands each time they disagree with us. Counseling is out since we live in separate cities.

Any words of wisdom for us? -- HURTING HEART IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR HURTING HEART: Look at this from your sons' perspective. When they hear from your grandchildren that your grouch (but well-meaning) husband yelled at them, as parents, their first instinct is to protect their kids.

I can't guarantee that your sons won't use emotional blackmail in the future, but I can offer two suggestions: Your husband should take a deep breath and count to 10 before he reacts, and he should defer the discipline to Grandma. And if that isn't enough to satisfy your sons, then you will have to visit them instead of having them visit you.

Opening lead — king of hearts.

As reported yesterday, this hand was responsible for a huge swing when Poland and France met in the final of the 1984 World Open Team Olympiad. It also produced a big swing in the U.S.-Great Britain women's final, which was played simultaneously with the open event.

In the Poland-France match, both sides played in six spades and got the king-of-hearts lead. The French declarer failed after he won the heart lead and tried to cash the A-K-Q of clubs, ruffed by West, who then cashed the heart queen.

The Polish declarer made the slam when he first cashed three diamonds (discarding a heart) and then the ace of trumps before playing the three top clubs. West ruffed the third club with the king, but it was then too late to score a heart trick.

In the women's final, Jacqui Mitchell and Gail Moss of the U.S. reached six spades as shown, and again the heart king was led. Moss won, played three diamonds, pitching a heart, and then tried three rounds of clubs, discarding her last heart.

The British West trumped, but instead of returning a heart (which would have left South no option but to ruff and play the ace of spades), she cleverly returned a diamond. Moss ruffed with dummy's ten and mullied the situation over.

Why had West voluntarily presented her with an entry to dummy? Whatever West's reason, all signs pointed to her having the king of spades. So instead of trying a finesse, Moss led a trump to the ace, caught West's king and made the slam.

At the other table, the British South played in six notrump, which had no chance after the king-of-hearts lead. The 17 IMPs the U.S. team gained proved critical, since it won the match — and the world title — by only 11 IMPs.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY FOR TUESDAY, AUG. 21, 2018:

This year you will get used to the many ups and downs that a partner or friend adds to your life. You will need to ride the crest of a wave frequently, remaining confident that all will end well. Many friends support your style and want to know you better. If you are single, you could discover how desirable you are. You will have to make a commitment to remain single, if that's what you desire. If you are attached, the two of you might decide to add to your family or home. This action will bring on even more bonding. CAPRICORN likes playing devil's advocate.

ARIES (MARCH 21-APRIL 19) You might have a stunning insight about a person. Keep your impression to yourself for a while. Test it out through observation. You continue taking the lead on a project, though it might be more than you can handle. Eye a change.

TAURUS (APRIL 20-MAY 20) What you hear could be disconcerting. Detach and view the whole situation.

You will surprise yourself with how a friend's comment hits you. Work with this person's insight. You might not get all the facts for a few days.

GEMINI (MAY 21-JUNE 20) You could be more connected to a conversation than you would like to share. You might be quietly filing away certain tidbits that are particularly relevant. Maintain an upbeat attitude when getting into the issue with the person involved.

CANCER (JUNE 21-JULY 22) Defer to someone else, and stay open to his or her ideas. The unexpected piques your imagination. This quality will help you visualize the possibilities that are likely to emerge. Stay open to conversation with others.

LEO (JULY 23-AUG. 22) Stay as centered as possible when dealing with a difficult friend. This person's behavior could throw your plans off. Make sure that handling this type of issue really works for you. Make time to deal with this type of situation.

VIRGO (AUG. 23-SEPT.

JACQUELINE BIGAR

BIGAR'S STARS

22) Your playfulness might be unusual for several people to witness. The unexpected occurs when dealing with a loved one. You might want to comment less and listen a lot. This person tends to be unpredictable. Sort fact from fiction.

LIBRA (SEPT. 23-OCT. 22) You express a lively side to your personality. When you let go of tension and enjoy the moment, your upbeat attitude becomes contagious. Do not allow a difficult conversation to color your mood. Let go of tension and concern.

SCORPIO (OCT. 23-NOV. 21) Understand why someone is so touchy. Juggling your creativity when hitting an unbelievably confusing situation could take some extra energy. Dealing with this person takes talent, fortunately you have the skill set.

SAGITTARIUS (NOV. 22-DEC. 21) Understand what is happening with your finances. You might need to go over your budget with care. Figure out your debts and your needs, and you'll be happier in the long run. Ask a friend for help when you deal with the materialistic world.

CAPRICORN (DEC. 22-JAN. 19) Your wisdom comes forward, and you gain the approval of many people. Do not be surprised by all the requests for help or feedback you receive. Remain confident, but listen carefully. You are likely to gain others' respect.

AQUARIUS (JAN. 20-FEB. 18) Kick back and relax, if you can. You have your share of news and happenings to deal with, and responding to these could be overwhelming. Take your time, do some yoga and brainstorm with a confidant.

PISCES (FEB. 19-MARCH 20) Your playfulness emerges, despite the moodiness of others. The unexpected could upend your plans, though you might be happier about the change. Try not to allow an older friend to cast a shadow of negativity.

TODAY'S HIGHLIGHT IN HISTORY:

On August 21, 1831, Nat Turner launched a violent slave rebellion in Virginia resulting in the deaths of at least 55 whites. (Turner was later executed.)

ON THIS DATE:

In 1609, Galileo Galilei demonstrated his new telescope to a group of officials atop the Campanile in Venice. In 1911, Leonardo da Vinci's "Mona Lisa" was stolen from the Louvre Museum in Paris. (The painting was recovered two years later in Italy.) In 1912, the Boy Scouts of America named its first Eagle Scout, Arthur Rose Eldred of Troop 1 in Rockville Centre, N.Y.

In 1940, exiled Communist revolutionary Leon Trotsky died in a Mexican hospital from wounds inflicted by an assassin the day before.

In 1959, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed an executive order making Hawaii the 50th state.

In 1961, country singer Patsy

Erratic nursing home staffing revealed through new records

By Jordan Rau
Kaiser Health News

ITHACA, N.Y. — Most nursing homes had fewer nurses and caretaking staff than they had reported to the government, according to new federal data, bolstering the long-held suspicions of many families that staffing levels were often inadequate.

The records for the first time reveal frequent and significant fluctuations in day-to-day staffing, with particularly large shortfalls on weekends. On the worst-staffed days at an average facility, the new data show, on-duty personnel cared for nearly twice as many residents as they did when the staffing roster was fullest.

The data, analyzed by Kaiser Health News, came from daily payroll records Medicare only recently began gathering and publishing from more than 14,000 nursing homes, as required by the Affordable Care Act of 2010. Medicare previously had been rating each facility's staffing levels based on the homes' own unverified reports, making it possible to game the system.

The payroll records provide the strongest evidence that, over the past decade, the government's five-star rating system for nursing homes often exaggerated staffing levels and rarely identified the periods of thin staffing that were common. Medicare is now relying on the new data to evaluate staffing, but the revamped star ratings still mask the erratic levels of people working from day to day.

At the Beechtree Center for Rehabilitation & Nursing in Ithaca, New York, Jay Vandemark, 47, who had a stroke last year, said he often roams the halls looking for an aide not already swamped with work when he needs help putting on his shirt.

Especially on weekends, he said, "it's almost like a ghost town."

Nearly 1.4 million people are cared for in skilled nursing facilities in the United States. When nursing homes are short-staffed, nurses and aides scramble to deliver meals, ferry bed-bound residents to the bathroom and answer calls for pain medication. Essential medical tasks such as repositioning a patient to avert bedsores can be overlooked when workers are overburdened, sometimes leading to avoidable hospitalizations.

"Volatility means there are gaps in care," said David Stevenson, an associate professor of health policy at Vanderbilt University School of Medicine in Nashville, Tennessee. "It's not like the day-to-day life of nursing home residents and their needs

Payroll records at the Beechtree Center for Rehabilitation & Nursing in Ithaca, New York, show that on its highest staffed days, it had one aide for every eight residents, but there was only one aide for 18 residents at the lowest staffing level. [JORDAN RAU/KHN] vary substantially on a weekend and a weekday. They need to get dressed, to bathe and to eat every single day."

Dr. David Gifford, a senior vice president at the American Health Care Association, a nursing home trade group, disagreed, saying there are legitimate reasons staffing varies. On weekends, for instance, there are fewer activities for residents and more family members around, he said.

While Medicare does not set a minimum resident-to-staff ratio, it does require the presence of a registered nurse for eight hours a day and a licensed nurse at all times.

The Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services, the federal agency that oversees nursing home inspections, said in a statement that it "is concerned and taking steps to address fluctuations in staffing levels" that have emerged from the new data. In July, it said it would lower ratings for nursing homes that had gone seven or more days without a registered nurse.

TODAY'S WORKOUT

Add a knee lift, weight to your squat routine

By Marlo Alleva
More Content Now

We all have fitness in our lives for many reasons.

For some, it's doctors' orders, others for vanity, and quite simply, to keep ourselves in check mentally and physically.

So whether you enjoy exercising or just pretend to, it's a must to keep our personal machines going.

That's why it's good to throw in variations and combinations from time to time, to keep our bodies and minds fresh.

Our move today is a close-stance squat with a knee-up combination, holding a hand weight.

This move will be working the lower body, quads, hamstrings and glutes and core. You will need a medium hand weight for this exercise.

Begin this move by holding the weight in both hands at chest level. Keep your chest tall, shoulders back and down, core engaged, and feet placed slightly outside your hips with your toes facing forward.

Start by bending in the knees and sitting into your squat motion. Go as low as you can to efficiently get back up, pushing your body weight back into the heels. Keep the knees behind the toes.

Once you reach your deepest position, return to the start, lifting one leg and tucking the knee toward your chest. Release and proceed into your next squat, alternating knees. Remember to hold your core tight and strong on the tucking motion as this is a great core-strengthening bonus.

Shoot for at least 10 squats for each set, aiming for at least three to five sets.

The hand weight is just for added resistance. You can always add more if you need intensity or drop the weight if your balance is compromised or you feel too fatigued.

OUR OPINION

Keep fighting toxic tides

If history repeats itself, the red tide plaguing a large swath of the inshore Gulf coast will eventually go away. The dead fish and other marine life that succumbed to the harmful algae will be removed from beaches and basins. The respiratory irritation experienced by humans will subside.

And legions of Floridians will forget the anger and dismay they now feel while viewing photographs and watching video of the impacts of red tide.

It happened after the 2005-06 red tide, one of the worst in Florida's recorded history, that resulted in a "dead zone" the size of Rhode Island on the Gulf bottom and caused massive losses of fish and marine mammals.

It happened after a two-year episode, from 1994 to 1996, and following the 1953-54 red tide that was, at the time, the longest on record.

As the blooms faded, so did the negative environmental and economic impacts that generated public outcry.

That's not to say steps aimed at reducing the intensification of red tide, a naturally occurring phenomenon, haven't been taken for the past three decades. They have occurred, and outbreaks have sometimes provided the impetus for incremental action.

But Florida continues to lack a science-based, fully funded plan for controlling pollution — from human-made nutrients — that, according to the scientific consensus, can fuel the inshore growth of microscopic red tide organisms that originally develop 10 to 40 miles offshore — not to mention its inland rivers and springs with their own algae problems.

One problem is that, in general, when red tide is out of sight (and out of smelling distance), it is out of the public's mind and, thus, not a political priority.

Another challenge is the complexity of the matter. There are different species of red tide algae; the bloom currently affecting the west coast is known as K. brevis, or Florida red tide. The vastness of the Gulf, the length of Florida's coastline and the diversity of conditions on the mainland make it difficult to reach sweeping conclusions about causes and effects.

According to Sarasota-based Mote Marine Laboratory: "In contrast to the many red tide species that are fueled by nutrient pollution associated with urban or agricultural runoff, there is no direct link between nutrient pollution and the frequency or severity of red tides caused by K. brevis."

Not everyone in the scientific community agrees with the assertion that there is "no direct link." That said, Mote communications embrace the scientific consensus with this conclusion: "However, once red tides are transported inshore, they are capable of using man-made nutrients for their growth."

Pictures of bright-green, algae-laden water released from Lake Okeechobee toward the west and east coasts have fueled public outrage and reinforced the widely held belief that red tide outbreaks are being lengthened and intensified by pollution from development, septic tanks and agriculture north of Lake Okeechobee.

Regardless of red tide, this pollution should be dramatically reduced and water management practices dramatically overhauled. Doing so will take money and commitment.

Could outrage over red tide force Floridians and their leaders to take pollution seriously? Perhaps but, as history has shown, only if it is sustained — after the red tide goes away.

ANOTHER OPINION

The press and the people

One difference between Richard Nixon's Watergate scandal and Donald Trump's mess is the 24-hour news cycle.

Watergate was a long and winding road. Two years passed from June of 1972 when Frank Wills, a 24-year-old security guard, called law enforcement to report suspicious activity at the Watergate Hotel, until Richard Nixon's resignation on Aug. 8, 1974.

But in those two years of Watergate, contrary to the nightmare we're living now, observers weren't subjected to the constant drumbeat of panelists screaming about the lying, corrupt president on one side and television anchors on the other side offering the president up as some kind of savior.

With Watergate it was Walter Cronkite and the 5:30 p.m. news and the daily newspaper.

But Robert Mueller's investigation into Russia's curious relationship with Donald Trump, and all that's being exposed along the way, seems much more convoluted than anything Watergate dished up. And the around-the-clock reporting of daily revelations is far from finished.

But this heightened sense of frenzy can only be maintained for so long before the noise becomes deafening.

Members of the press have the same problems reacting to a megalomaniac that the rest of us do. But editorializing is not the same as providing information, and there's been too much of that.

As it is, even the smallest bit of minutia has been dissected. Someone wears a yellow tie, another isn't wearing a flag lapel pin — what does that tell us? The dialogue can continue for hours.

On many giddy occasions, anchor and panel looks a lot like cats batting around a dead mouse. It's off-putting.

And at the same time that the press is under siege in a reprehensible way, they have to accept some of the blame for driving a portion of their audience away.

As a direct result of the daily blather, there is a hunger for normalcy, or at least a safe distance from chaos. And there are those who have retreated from media and created their own designated space to escape the bedlam.

Fox News Alerts? CNN Breaking News? As with any soap opera where the storyline may take days to play out, the same breaking news story announced in the morning will still be breaking news in the afternoon.

More fed up than fired up, "We The People" are choosing to remain above the fray until active participation will make a difference.

In fact, the good ol' days of common misery would be welcome at this point — politics being too partisan and Congress never performing as well as is expected. Something every American could get their arms around.

Instead, it's become a matter of maintaining a positive balance between personal responsibilities and politics.

And retreating to the shadows, at least for now, is of benefit to party loyalists on both sides.

Democrats are frustrated by their party's meanderings, and there are those who believe that were it not for Hillary Clinton's lust for coronation, and the party's lack of imagination in bringing forward new blood, perhaps the nation wouldn't be stuck with Donald Trump.

And it works for Republicans who held their noses and voted for Trump, hoping his presidency wouldn't be so bad, only to find themselves party to the worst threat to democracy this country may have ever witnessed.

From both sides of the aisle, there is an abundance of disgust for those in elected office who have the ability to demand change but won't, and those who have the ability to say "country first," and "enough is enough," but don't have the intestinal fortitude to do so.

Within the confines of this self-imposed seclusion, getting new tires for the car is more pressing than counting Rick Gates' mistresses.

The press would do well to abandon their habit of perpetual motion for fear of the one mistake which would give legitimacy to the notion of "fake press." And rising from the ashes of the now-cloistered American could be a smarter voter demanding more than leading questions and hyperbole from the press.

That would make for a better democracy — a ready press, qualified candidates and, an educated voter. Maybe it really is just that simple.

Journalist cameos should end

"Mission: Impossible — Fallout" has been attracting a lot of moviegoers with some clever sequences, including one just before the opening credits. The real Wolf Blitzer plays a fake Wolf Blitzer. Fans of the franchise know that the Impossible Missions Force — or IMF — is adept at creating masks. In this bit, the team tricks an evil nuclear scientist into coughing up information by appearing to accede to his demand that CNN broadcast his manifesto.

There's Blitzer on the small screen, reading the evil screed. But it's all a fake. Once the intelligence is in hand, "Blitzer" pulls off his mask to reveal himself as one of the IMF agents. And then, the "Mission Impossible" music. So very cool.

Except that it's totally uncool. Shtick like that really damages the news media's credibility at a time when it can least afford it. Back in 1974, the great Walter Cronkite, succumbing to network pressure, made a quick cameo in an episode of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." As problematic as that was, it was a rare thing; the wall between news and entertainment was still intact. But no longer.

In 1997, the movie "Contact," about extra-terrestrial research, drew heavy criticism because it was so loaded with CNN anchors and reporters.

The head of the network called for an end to putting on-air staff in films.

Such scruples were short-lived. The number of famous journalists in movies and TV series has exploded. HBO's "House of Cards" had Rachel Maddow, George Stephanopoulos and Lester Holt playing themselves. "Batman vs. Superman" featured Anderson Cooper and Soledad O'Brien, and there are plenty of other examples.

Journalists aren't immune from celebrity, and they like the paycheck that comes with it, but what really drives this is that huge media companies such as CNN's parent, Warner-Media, own a news network, movie distributors and production companies. Viewers and moviemakers probably like it because real news people add authenticity to the story.

Problem is, what burnishes fiction tarnishes fact, along with the journalists and outlets they represent. On social media, where many of us get our news, stories from reliable sources are right up against lies and chicanery.

So why would CNN or WarnerMedia think it would be a good idea for Blitzer to play himself, and then turn out to be a Wolf in IMF clothing? Blitzer himself should have seen the problem with that.

CNN deserves credit for trying to serve the world with important, verified, accurate information. And journalists who are doing good work probably think movie cameos are the least of the problems facing news media. They may even buy into the idea that showing up in movies is "good for the brand." But that kind of thinking ignores what the brand is. CNN stands for what's true, and newscasters simply shouldn't feed the blur between truth and fantasy.

Keep news staff in the field and in the newsroom — and off the set.

No. 1 Alabama tops preseason Top 25

By Ralph D. Russo
The Associated Press

Alabama will begin its quest for a second consecutive national championship with a rare three-peat.

The Crimson Tide is just the second team to be ranked No. 1 in the preseason Associated Press Top 25 poll for three straight seasons. Alabama received 42 out of 61 first-place votes.

No. 2 Clemson received 18 first-place votes. Georgia is No. 3 and Wisconsin is fourth. The Badgers received one first-place vote. Ohio State was ranked No. 5.

The preseason AP poll started in 1950 and since then only Oklahoma from 1985-87 had started No. 1 in three straight years until now.

Ring up another milestone for coach Nick Saban's Tide dynasty. Alabama has won five national championships since 2009 and now has been No. 1 to start the season five times under Saban. Last season was the first time Saban's team started and finished the season No. 1.

The Tide enter this season with a question at quarterback, but there appears to be two good answers from which Saban has to choose: Tua Tagovailoa won the College Football Playoff championship game for Alabama with a second-half comeback and overtime touchdown pass. Jalen Hurts has led the Tide to the national title game in each of his two seasons as a starter.

Whoever is quarterback, Alabama's offense should be potent with running back Damien Harris working behind a powerful line anchored by tackle Jonah Williams.

The Tide's always tough defense will have all new starters in the secondary, but defensive end Raekwon Davis and linebackers Mack Wilson and Dylan Moses are primed to be Alabama's next All-Americans.

The machine never stops in

Leesburg coach turning loss into motivation for Yellow Jackets

By Frank Jolley
frank.jolley@dailycommercial.com

LEESBURG — Mark Oates found a lot of positives and negatives after watching video of Friday's Kickoff Classic against Inverness Citrus.

The Leesburg coach led the Yellow Jackets' through their practice on Monday — their first workout since falling 15-14 to Citrus at H.O. Dabney Stadium — ready to get to work on fixing the flaws while also emphasizing the good he saw.

"We didn't always play with the right technique, but I thought we played hard and got snaps for a lot of players," Oates said. "We got five freshman — Ronnie Joe Gilchrist, Nathen Kristovich, Eric Coffie, Daundre Miller and Sabari Boone — into the game and it was a pretty seamless transition when they played.

"All in all, while we have a lot to work on, it wasn't a bad overall effort for a first game."

Oates was happy with quarterback A.J. Graham's performance. The senior southpaw completed 6 of 19 passes for 153 yards and two touchdowns, but Oates felt he could've thrown for more yardage for a higher percentage — and at least two more touchdowns — if the Leesburg receiving corps had done a better job of holding on to the football.

Graham and receivers Jatavian Solomon and David Robinson displayed the makings of an electric mid-range attack, particularly Solomon, who connected with Graham for a 94-yard touchdown pass on the final play of the first half.

But, like with other positions on the field, there is work to be done.

"When we didn't call passing plays, I don't think our receivers went all out," said Oates. "They have to learn how to sell the pass on every play. That will make our running game more effective."

And Yellow Jackets fans got a solid glimpse of the ground attack. Tayquan Pinellas, a 5-foot-7, 200-pound senior transfer from Kissimmee Osceola saw limited touches, but showcased his bruising style of running. Pinellas' style of running — a physical, battering approach that

Team that endured hurricane makes LLWS run

SOUTH WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. — After a five-inning, 14 strike-out, no-hit performance, Roberto Joubert stepped off the mound and made his way toward the Puerto Rico dugout.

An emphatic roar filled Volunteer Stadium, as miniature Puerto Rican flags waved in tandem with fatheads of each player. The Puerto Rico faithful consisted of no more than 60 or 70 people, yet their passion could be felt throughout the 3,000-seat ballpark.

At the front of the crowd was Pedro Ortiz, whose son Devin is a reserve outfielder. Ortiz has watched this Radames Lopez Little League team from Guayama win championships together at every age level since they were 5, and on Monday he saw another happy moment, a 3-1 win over Panama in an elimination game.

But even he struggled to picture this scene 11 months ago.

"It's been a really really tough year," Ortiz said. "For us to be here after Hurricane Maria, we really didn't know whether or not we were going to play baseball."

Last September, Hurricane Maria smashed Guayama, a coastal town of around 40,000. In the weeks that followed, the Ortiz family didn't have a place to call home. Star catcher John Lopez had to scramble to rebuild his family's fritter business. Because the island's entire power grid was knocked out, pitcher Yadiel Delgado couldn't contact his father in Florida for weeks.

For nearly a month, Guayama was forced to come to grips with its new reality, a tall task for any kid. As families searched for water, gas and other necessities, the Little Leaguers dedicated themselves to whipping their local baseball diamonds into shape.

By mid-October, they were finally ready, and a momentary distraction had arrived.

"The first goal was to bring some recreation to the kids, not to think about what happened

Wickens crash a reminder racing will never be safe

By Jenna Fryer
The Associated Press

Race car drivers understand death, more so than other professional athletes. Nearly every driver at the top levels has lost a friend or a rival in a race, an acquaintance from another series, a driver they grew up idolizing.

Death is a risk the drivers willingly take and their loved ones accept, knowing the passion for a profession that can kill.

Robert Wickens came to terms with the stakes long before he left a successful career in Europe racing touring cars to join the IndyCar Series. Was he thinking he could be seriously injured when he climbed into his car Sunday at Pocono Raceway? Most certainly not. Drivers don't become champions through fear.

Wickens certainly wasn't scared when the flag dropped and the wheel-to-wheel as he tried to pass Ryan Hunter-Reay just a few minutes into the race. The cars hurtled through the turn, each driver mashing the gas, refusing

Florida State AD Wilcox leaving for NCAA role

Florida State athletic director Stan Wilcox is leaving for the NCAA, filling the job vacated when Oliver Luck left to run the new NFL.

The NCAA announced Monday that Wilcox will serve as executive vice president of regulatory affairs. Luck, the former West Virginia athletic director, filled that role for four years before stepping down in June.

"Stan is a highly respected, visionary leader in intercollegiate athletics, and I'm excited to have him join our senior leadership team at the national office," NCAA President Mark Emmert said in a statement.

Wilcox has been AD at Florida State since 2013. Before that he did stints at Duke and Notre Dame, his alma mater, as a deputy athletic director.

Maryland to wear helmet sticker to honor McNair

Members of the Maryland football team will wear a helmet sticker with No. 79 to honor former teammate Jordan McNair, who collapsed during a practice session in May and subsequently died.

In an announcement Monday morning, the school said no player will wear his number for the next three years — the time during which he would have been eligible to play.

In addition, a moment of silence will be held during Texas and Temple games, and his locker will be encased in glass.

Speaking in Cole Field House on the university campus with his teammates lined up behind him, Maryland offensive lineman Ellis McKennie said, "Every play we make, every snap we take, will be in Jordan's honor."

He added, "Jordan was fearless. He was a dreamer. He would do anything for his teammates."

Want to vote for the Tennis Hall of Fame?

Martina Hingis figures she wouldn't have needed any help from fans to earn her spot in the International Tennis Hall of Fame. Still, she likes the idea that folks around the world now will have a say in who gets elected.

"I would have hoped that people liked me and liked my game, liked my style, so hopefully that wouldn't have made a difference to make it in or out," Hingis said with a laugh during a phone interview. "I would have only hoped that it would only push me more. I would hope that in my case, it would have been pretty clear that I had made it."

Her sport's Hall will let fans help select its next inductees. Anyone will be able to submit an online ballot starting in late August for the Class of 2019.

The votes will then become part of the overall tally that determines which players are elected.

WNBA playoff field set after wild year

WNBA playoffs are set after a wild, unpredictable regular season came to an end Sunday.

As expected, Los Angeles and Minnesota will meet in the postseason for a third straight year. Unexpectedly, it's in the first round.

The two-time WNBA finalists finished a surprising sixth and seventh in the regular season and will face off in Los Angeles on Tuesday night.

"Minnesota is a good team. You can throw records out the window right now," Sparks coach Brian Agler said. "They have two of the elite offensive players in the league, one inside and one outside, they have veteran savvy, tough minded championship pedigree and we have played them enough, over 20 times in three years, so we know each other pretty well."

Tuscaloosa. One again, everybody is chasing Alabama.

No. 1 at being No. 1

The AP poll began in 1936 and Alabama is approaching the top of a very storied list:

Ohio State — 105 weeks at No. 1
Alabama — 104
Oklahoma — 101
Notre Dame — 98
Southern California — 91
Florida State — 72
Nebraska — 70

Preseason favorites

This is Alabama's seventh time overall being a preseason No. 1, matching USC for fourth most.

Oklahoma — 10 preseason No. 1 rankings

Ohio State — 8
Alabama — 7
USC — 7
Florida State 6
Nebraska — 6

The other champs

Central Florida was the only team in the country to go undefeated last season and — you might have heard — the school decided to declare the Knights national champions because why not? This is college football and nobody is really in charge.

UCF is ranked in the Top 25 for the first time to the start the season, coming in 21st in the preseason poll. The Knights are the highest-ranked team not in a Power Five conference, one spot ahead of Boise State from the Mountain West. If that ranking after going unbeaten seems unusually low, it is but it is not unprecedented. In the CFP/BCS era (1998-present), 19 teams have had unbeaten seasons. Three of those teams — 1998 Tulane, 1999 Marshall, 2004 Utah — were unrated in the preseason poll the next season. Not surprisingly, all those teams played outside of what were then called BCS automatic qualifying conferences. Five other teams were ranked outside the top 10, including three from outside BCS-auto bid leagues. Boise State in 2007 was No. 24 in the preseason. Utah in 2009 started 19th. TCU began 2011 at No. 14.

The only so-called power conference team to go unbeaten in the BCS/CFP era and be ranked similarly low the next season was Auburn — twice. After going 13-0 in 2004, the Tigers started 2005 ranked 16th. After Cam Newton led Auburn to the 2010 national title, the Newton-less Tigers were ranked No. 23 to begin 2011.

at their houses," manager Carlos Texidor said through an interpreter.

Communicating without a functioning power grid and traveling through debris proved to be difficult, and once the players arrived at practice, they had to cope with fields that were in anything but pristine condition. To make matters worse, they could only play during the day — which is generally avoided in the hot Caribbean climate — and had to share the fields with many neighboring communities.

Yet practice after practice, the determined group of 11- and 12-year-olds kept showing up, and almost a year later, they're the first team in Radames Lopez Little League's rich history to make it to the Little League World Series.

"I learned don't stop, just go ahead," Delgado said through an interpreter. "Every time."

The team has lost

just twice this summer and went undefeated throughout the Caribbean Regional, scoring 51 runs in the process. They will face another win-or-you're-out game on Tuesday, and still have to string together three victories to get to the tournament final Sunday.

Lopez said he isn't ready for it all to end, at least not yet.

"I love to be here," he said through an interpreter. "I'm really comfortable here and if it's up to me, I want to stay here."

CRASH

to give an inch of asphalt in a breathtaking game of chicken. Those moments are so beautiful and the very essence of auto racing.

But those moments can change from thrilling to terrifying once wheels connect on a pair of open-cockpit Indy cars. Open wheel's history is filled with instances of cars sailing into fences, spinning like tops through the air and leaving parts scattered over the track with drivers often lucky to come away alive.

Wickens and Hunter-Reay touched their cars ever so slightly — this was no beating and banging like NASCAR — and the racing suddenly turned ugly. Hunter-Reay's car spun into Wickens' path and Wickens launched over it and into the fence. His car spun over and over, smacking along the fence, and it appeared to smash into a pole as it partially disintegrated into a minefield of debris. As the car was spit back toward the track, the in-car camera from Hunter-Reay's seat showed it missed clipping Hunter-Reay's head by inches.

Wickens was airlifted to a hospital in nearby Allentown, Pennsylvania. IndyCar said Monday the 29-year-old Canadian will undergo surgery for a spinal injury. He suffered injuries to his lower extremities, right arm and spine and a pulmonary contusion.

Both he and Hunter-Reay are lucky to be alive. The outcomes could have been worse — if Wickens' car went into the fence cockpit first, if the protective tub had not remained intact, if the debris field had been fractions of an inch lower as it sailed over Hunter-Reay's head.

Enough ifs to ignite a renewed safety debate, calls for different fencing at ovals or halos over the cockpits to protect drivers' heads.

Everything should be looked at because improving safety should always be a priority. But racing is never going to be 100 percent safe. If risk was not part of the show, there would be no show.

It took two hours to repair the gaping hole in the Pocono fence and the IndyCar drivers, a close-knit group, could do nothing but wait for an update on Wickens while waiting for the race to resume.

Alexander Rossi, who went on to win, was asked about that balance during the delay.

"You compartmentalize," he said.

was accused of being insensitive when he was interviewed after the accident. The team owner said Wickens should have let off the gas and it was too early in the race to be so aggressive, prompting criticism on social media over his perceived detachment.

Perhaps he was just compartmentalizing. Andretti has lost enough friends to racing accidents — including Dan Wheldon in 2011 and Justin Wilson, who was driving an Andretti car in a 2015 accident at Pocono — to understand the emotions enveloping the paddock on Sunday.

often becomes more effective as a game wears on — promises to be the perfect complement to Graham's elusiveness. He actually left the game at one point to have a dislocated finger put back in place.

"It was a good first experience for me with the Yellow Jackets," said Pinellas. "I had fun and there was more to (Friday's game) than just a loss. I want to be a leader for this team and I hope my teammates saw that I'm never going to tap out of game."

In the end, the Yellow Jackets lost when the Hurricanes converted on a two-point conversion with 35 seconds to play. The conversion was controversial because the Citrus running back appeared to hit the ground shy of the end zone and bounced across the goal line.

Oates, however, refused to allow his players to use that as an excuse for the loss. He hopes they will use it as motivation to get through the week and to Friday's regular-season opener at home against much-improved South Sumter.

"I hope they were upset afterwards because we lost the game," said Oates. "We didn't get robbed, because we put ourselves in that situation. We dropped touchdown passes and we didn't tackle well. We have to learn how to take care of ourselves and not have any self-inflicted wounds ... namely turnovers."

"Against South Sumter and everyone else on our schedule, we have to learn how to finish games."

THIS DATE IN BASEBALL

AUG. 21

1919: Bert Adams of the Philadelphia Phillies tied a National League record for catchers as he recorded seven assists in one game.
1926: Ted Lyons of the Chicago White Sox pitched a no-hitter over the Boston Red Sox at Fenway Park. The 6-0 victory was achieved in 1 hour, 7 minutes.
1930: Chick Hafey of the St. Louis Cardinals hit for the cycle and drove in five runs in a 16-6 rout of the Philadelphia Phillies.
1931: Babe Ruth hit his 600th home run as the Yankees beat the St. Louis Browns 11-7.
1972: Steve Carlton of Philadelphia had his 15-game winning streak snapped when Phil Niekro and the Atlanta Braves beat the Phillies 2-1 in 11 innings.
1975: Pitching brothers Rick and Paul Reuschel of the Chicago Cubs combined to throw a 7-0 shutout against the Los Angeles Dodgers. Rick went 6.1 innings and Paul finished the shutout for the first ever by two brothers.
1982: Milwaukee pitcher Rollie Fingers became the first player to achieve 300 career saves as the Brewers beat the Seattle Mariners 3-2.
1986: Spike Owens had four hits and became the first major league player in 40 years to score six runs in a game as the Boston Red Sox routed the Cleveland Indians 24-5 with a 24-hit attack. With 2 outs in 6th inning, Red Sox score 11 runs 2007: Garret Anderson of the Los Angeles Angels drove in a team-record 10 runs in an 18-9 rout of the New York Yankees. Anderson hit a grand slam, a three-run homer, a two-run double and an RBI double to become the 12th player in major league history to have 10 RBIs in a game.

NO PURCHASE NECESSARY. MAKING A PURCHASE WILL NOT IMPROVE YOUR CHANCES OF WINNING. VOID WHERE PROHIBITED. PUBLICATIONS: The following publications are participating in this Sweepstakes (the "Publication"): Daily Commercial and South Lake Press. SWEEPSTAKES PERIOD: The Best of the Best Sweepstakes (the "Sweepstakes") begins at 12 a.m. on August 5, 2018 and ends at 11:59 p.m. on August 24, 2018 (the "Sweepstakes Period"). ELIGIBILITY: The Sweepstakes is open only to legal residents of the United States who are eighteen (18) years of age or older at the time of entry (the "Entrant" or "Entrants"). Employees, contractors or interns of GateHouse Media, LLC Daily Commercial and South Lake Press (together, "GateHouse Media"), and the businesses appearing on this page (the "Sponsors"), and each of their respective divisions, affiliates, parent companies, subsidiaries, advertising and promotion agencies (including, in each case, immediate family members) are not eligible to enter the Sweepstakes. For purposes of this Sweepstakes, "immediate family members" is defined as spouses, siblings, parents, children, grandparents and grandchildren, whether as "in-laws", or by current or past marriage, remarriage, adoption, co-habitation or other familial extension, and any other persons residing at the same household location, whether or not related. In order to enter the Sweepstakes or win the prize, the Entrant must comply fully with these Official Rules (the "Rules"), and by entering agrees to be bound by these Rules and the decisions of GateHouse Media, whose decisions shall be binding and final in all respects. HOW TO ENTER THE SWEEPSTAKES: SWEEPSTAKES RULES: To enter the Sweepstakes, Entrants should visit www.dailycommercial.com/contests (the "Website") during the Sweepstakes Period, navigate to the "Best of the Best" icon, complete the entry form with the required contact information, submit votes on the ballot (the "Ballot") according to the instructions and submit the ballot as directed (the "Entry" or "Entries"). One (1) Entry per person will be accepted during the Sweepstakes Period. Entries must be received by 11:59 p.m. August 24, 2018 in order to be eligible (the "Entry Deadline"). No Entries will be accepted after this time. The use of any automated system to submit entries is prohibited and will result in disqualification of all such entries as well as the Entrant. RANDOM DRAWING: ODDS OF WINNING: WINNER NOTIFICATION There will be one (1) potential winner (the "Winner" or "Winners") selected in a random drawing to be held on or about August 29, 2018 from all eligible Entries received by the Entry Deadline (the "Drawing"). Odds of winning depend on the total number of Entries received and how the Entries meet the criteria established for this Sweepstakes. The Winner will be notified by phone and/or e-mail on or around August 29, 2018 in accordance with the contact information supplied with the Entry. The potential prize winner must sign an Affidavit of Eligibility, Liability and Publicity Release in order to be eligible to accept the prize. PRIZES: There will be one (1) prize awarded in this Sweepstakes as follows: Drawing 2 (Voting) - The Winner will be awarded a $100 Gift Card. No substitution or transfer of the prize will be allowed, except at the sole discretion of GateHouse Media. GateHouse Media reserves the right to substitute prizes of equal or greater value. The reporting and payment of all local, state and federal taxes incurred by accepting a prize will be the sole responsibility of the prize winner. No compensation will be given for lost, stolen, mutilated or expired Gift Cards. Fulfillment of Gift Card is the sole responsibility of the merchant, not GateHouse Media, and is only redeemable at the specified locations. The Gift Card must be surrendered upon redemption and no photocopies or reproductions will be honored. Terms and conditions are applied to Gift Cards. All decisions of GateHouse Media regarding the Sweepstakes are final. CONDITIONS: By entering, Entrants agree to comply with these Official Rules and the decisions of GateHouse Media, which are binding and final, and release GateHouse Media, and each of its divisions, affiliates, parent companies, subsidiaries, advertising and promotion agencies and anyone associated with the production of this Sweepstakes, and their respective directors, officers, employees and agents from and all liability for any claims, injuries, losses or damages (including attorneys fees) of any kind arising out of their participation in or seeking to redeem said prize. In the event of non-compliance with these Official Rules, or if prize notification is returned to GateHouse Media as undeliverable, if prize is refused or cannot be accepted for any reason, the prize will be forfeited and an alternate winner will be selected in a random drawing. Upon forfeiture or refusal, no compensation will be given. Acceptance of prize constitutes permission to use the winner's name, photograph, likeness and/or statements attributed to winner regarding the Sweepstakes, for advertising and publicity purposes without further compensation or consent. All entries become the property of GateHouse Media. This Sweepstakes shall only be construed and evaluated according to the laws of the state of Florida, without regard to the principles of conflicts of laws and submission of any entry constitutes acceptance of such laws. This Sweepstakes is void where prohibited. All federal, state and local laws and regulations apply. INTERNET: It is the Entrant's responsibility to enter in the appropriate manner. Each Entrant is responsible for all costs or charges involved in accessing the www.dailycommercial.com website and warrants that the cost of accessing the site, if any, is part of a larger agreement with an Internet Service Provider or some other means, and that the cost of this access is not an incremental cost. If for any reason the internet portion of the program is not capable of running as planned, including infection by computer virus, bugs, tampering, unauthorized intervention, fraud, technical failures, or any other causes beyond the control of GateHouse Media which corrupt or affect the administration, security, fairness, integrity or proper conduct of this Sweepstakes, GateHouse Media reserves the right, at its sole discretion, to disqualify any individual who tampers with or attempts to interfere with the Sweepstakes. Should the Sweepstakes be terminated prior to the Entry Deadline, finalists will be drawn at days-end from eligible entries received up to the time of cancellation. GateHouse Media assumes no responsibility for any error, omission, interruption, deletion, defect, delay in operation or transmission, communication line failure, theft, or destruction or unauthorized access to, or alteration of, entries. GateHouse Media is not responsible for lost, misdirected, illegible, damaged or undelivered Entries. GateHouse Media is not responsible for any problems or technical malfunctions of any telephone network or lines, computer online systems, services or providers, computer equipment, software, failure of any email or entry to be received due to technical problems or traffic congestion on the internet or at any web site, or any combination thereof, including any injury or damage to participant's or any other person's computer related to or resulting from participation or downloading of any material in this Sweepstakes. CAUTION: Any attempt by an Entrant to deliberately damage any web site or undermine the legitimate operation of the Sweepstakes is a violation of criminal and civil laws and should such an attempt be made, GateHouse Media reserves the right to seek damages from any such computer to the fullest extent permitted by law. In the event of a dispute, entries made by Internet will be declared made by the authorized account holder of the e-mail address submitted at time of entry. "Authorized account holder" is defined as the natural person who is assigned to an e-mail address by an Internet access provider, online service provider, or other organization (e.g. business, educational institution, etc.) that is responsible for assigning e-mail addresses for the domain associated with the submitted e-mail address. Automated entries are prohibited, and any use of such devices will cause disqualification. Collection and use of personally identifiable information will be in accordance with the Publication's Privacy Policy as posted on the Publication's Website. This Sweepstakes is not intended for gambling. If it is determined that an Entrant is using the Sweepstakes for gambling purposes, he/she will be disqualified and reported to authorities. GateHouse Media and its affiliates reserve the right to use any and all information related to the Sweepstakes, including information on Entrants obtained through the Sweepstakes, for marketing purposes or any other purpose, unless prohibited by law. By participating in the Sweepstakes, Entrants agree to opt-in to receive e-mail communications from GateHouse Media or the Sponsors. If Entrants choose to opt out of such future communications from GateHouse Media or the Sponsors, they will be able to do so by following the instructions on any electronic communications sent by GateHouse Media or the Sponsors. Upon opting-out, GateHouse Media or the Sponsors will no longer send e-mail messages to the Entrant. An Entrant's choice to opt out will not affect the Entrant's chances of winning in this Sweepstakes. GateHouse Media and its affiliates reserve the right to change the rules of the Sweepstakes at any time.

NO PURCHASE NECESSARY. MAKING A PURCHASE WILL NOT IMPROVE YOUR CHANCES OF WINNING. VOID WHERE PROHIBITED. PUBLICATIONS: The following publications are participating in this Sweepstakes (the "Publication"): Daily Commercial and South Lake Press. SWEEPSTAKES PERIOD: The Best of the Best Awards Sweepstakes (the "Sweepstakes") begins at 12 a.m. on August 5, 2018 and ends at 11:59 p.m. on August 24, 2018 (the "Sweepstakes Period"). ELIGIBILITY: The Sweepstakes is open only to legal residents of the United States who are eighteen (18) years of age or older at the time of entry (the "Entrant" or "Entrants"). Employees, contractors or interns of GateHouse Media, LLC, Daily Commercial and South Lake Press (together, "GateHouse Media"), and the businesses appearing on this page (the "Sponsors"), and each of their respective divisions, affiliates, parent companies, subsidiaries, advertising and promotion agencies (including, in each case, immediate family members) are not eligible to enter the Sweepstakes. For purposes of this Sweepstakes, "immediate family members" is defined as spouses, siblings, parents, children, grandparents and grandchildren, whether as "in-laws", or by current or past marriage, remarriage, adoption, co-habitation or other familial extension, and any other persons residing at the same household location, whether or not related. In order to enter the Sweepstakes or win the prize, the Entrant must comply fully with these Official Rules (the "Rules"), and by entering agrees to be bound by these Rules and the decisions of GateHouse Media, whose decisions shall be binding and final in all respects. HOW TO ENTER THE SWEEPSTAKES; SWEEPSTAKES RULES: To enter the Sweepstakes, Entrants should visit www.dailycommercial.com/contests (the "Website") during the Sweepstakes Period, navigate to the "Best of the Best" icon, complete the entry form with the required contact information, submit votes on the ballot (the "Ballot") according to the instructions and submit the entry as directed (the "Entry" or "Entries"). One (1) Entry per person will be accepted during the Sweepstakes Period. Entries must be received by 11:59 p.m. August 24, 2018 in order to be eligible (the "Entry Deadline"). No Entries will be accepted after this time. Entries will not be accepted through e-mail or facsimile. Entries made with multiple e-mail addresses, under multiple identities or through the use of any agent or other device to enter multiple times will be deemed invalid. The use of any automated system to submit entries is prohibited and will result in disqualification of all such entries as well as the Entrant. RANDOM DRAWING; ODDS OF WINNING; WINNER NOTIFICATION: There will be one (1) potential winner (the "Winner" or "Winners") selected in a random drawing to be held on or about August 29, 2018 from all eligible Entries received by the Entry Deadline (the "Drawing"). Odds of winning depend on the total number of Entries received and how the Entries meet the criteria established for this Sweepstakes. The Winner will be notified by phone and/or e-mail on or around August 29, 2018 in accordance with the contact information supplied with the Entry. The potential prize winner must sign an Affidavit of Eligibility, Liability and Publicity Release in order to be eligible to accept the prize. PRIZES: There will be one (1) prize awarded in this Sweepstakes as follows: Drawing 2 (Voting) - The Winner will be awarded a $100 Gift Card. No substitution or transfer of the prize will be allowed, except at the sole discretion of GateHouse Media. GateHouse Media reserves the right to substitute prizes of equal or greater value. The reporting and payment of all local, state and federal taxes incurred by accepting a prize will be the sole responsibility of the prize winner. No redemption will be given for lost, stolen, mutilated or expired Gift Cards. Fulfillment of Gift Card is the sole responsibility of the merchant, not GateHouse Media, and is only redeemable at the specified locations. The Gift Card must be surrendered upon redemption and no photocopies or reproductions will be honored. Terms and conditions are applied to Gift Cards. All decisions of GateHouse Media regarding the Sweepstakes are final. CONDITIONS: By entering, Entrants agree to comply with these Official Rules and the decisions of GateHouse Media, which are binding and final, and release GateHouse Media, and each of its divisions, affiliates, parent companies, subsidiaries, advertising and promotion agencies and anyone associated with the production of this Sweepstakes, and their respective directors, officers, employees and agents from any and all liability for any claims, injuries, losses or damages (including attorneys fees) of any kind arising out of their participation in this Sweepstakes or resulting from acceptance, possession, use or misuse of any prize. The potential prize winner waives the right to assert as a cost of winning the prize any and all costs of verification and redemption or travel to redeem said prize and waives any liability or claims (including attorneys fees) which might arise from redeeming or seeking to redeem said prize. In the event of non-compliance with these Official Rules, or if prize notification is returned to GateHouse Media as undeliverable, if prize is refused or cannot be accepted for any reason, the prize will be forfeited and an alternate winner will be selected in a random drawing. Upon forfeiture or refusal, no compensation will be given. Acceptance of prize constitutes permission to use the winner's name, photograph, likeness and/or statements attributed to winner regarding the Sweepstakes, for advertising and publicity purposes without further compensation or consent. All entries become the property of GateHouse Media. This Sweepstakes shall only be construed and evaluated according to the laws of the state of Florida, without regard to the principles of conflicts of laws and submission of any entry constitutes acceptance of such laws. This Sweepstakes is void where prohibited. All federal, state and local laws and regulations apply. INTERNET: It is the Entrant's responsibility to enter in the appropriate manner. Each Entrant is responsible for all costs or charges involved in accessing the pistar.com web site and warrants that the cost of accessing the site, if any, is part of a larger agreement with an Internet Service Provider or some other means, and that the cost of this access is not an incremental cost. If for any reason the internet portion of the program is not capable of running as planned, including infection by computer virus, bugs, tampering, unauthorized intervention, fraud, technical failures, or any other causes beyond the control of GateHouse Media which corrupt or affect the administration, security, fairness, integrity, or proper conduct of this Sweepstakes, GateHouse Media reserves the right, at its sole discretion, to disqualify any individual who tampers with the entry process, and to cancel, terminate, modify or suspend the Sweepstakes. Should the Sweepstakes be terminated prior to the Entry Deadline, finalists will be drawn at days-end from eligible entries received up to the time of cancellation. GateHouse Media assumes no responsibility for any error, omission, interruption, deletion, defect, delay in operation or transmission, communication line failure, theft, or destruction or unauthorized access to, or alteration of, entries. GateHouse Media is not responsible for lost, misdirected, illegible, damaged or undelivered Entries. GateHouse Media is not responsible for any problems or technical malfunctions of any telephone network or lines, computer online systems, services or providers, computer equipment, software, failure of any email or entry to be received due to technical problems or traffic congestion on the internet or at any web site, or any combination thereof, including any injury or damage to participant's or any other person's computer related to or resulting from participation or downloading of any material in this Sweepstakes. CAUTION: Any attempt by an Entrant to deliberately damage any web site or undermine the legitimate operation of the Sweepstakes is a violation of criminal and civil laws and should such an attempt be made, GateHouse Media reserves the right to seek damages from any such person to the fullest extent permitted by law. In the event of a dispute, entries made by Internet will be declared made by the authorized account holder of the e-mail address submitted at time of entry. "Authorized account holder" is defined as the natural person who is assigned to an e-mail address by an Internet access provider, online service provider, or other organization (e.g. business, educational institution, etc.) that is responsible for assigning e-mail addresses for the domain associated with the submitted e-mail address. Automated entries are prohibited, and any use of such devices will cause disqualification. Collection and use of personally identifiable information will be in accordance with the Publication's Privacy Policy as posted on the Publication's Website. This Sweepstakes is not intended for gambling. If it is determined that an Entrant is using the Sweepstakes for gambling purposes, he/she will be disqualified and reported to authorities. GateHouse Media and its affiliates reserve the right to use any and all information related to the Sweepstakes, including information on Entrants obtained through the Sweepstakes, for marketing purposes or any other purpose, unless prohibited by law. By participating in the Sweepstakes, Entrants agree to opt-in to receive e-mail communications from GateHouse Media or the Sponsors. If Entrants choose to opt out of such future communications from GateHouse Media or the Sponsors, they will be able to do so by following the instructions on any electronic communications sent by GateHouse Media or the Sponsors. Upon opting-out, GateHouse Media or the Sponsors will no longer send e-mail messages to the Entrant. An Entrant's choice to opt out will not affect the Entrant's chances of winning in this Sweepstakes. GateHouse Media and its affiliates reserve the right to change the rules of the Sweepstakes at any time.
