

September 19, 2016

Dennis M. Keefe
Director, Office of Food Additive Safety
Center for Food Safety and Applied Nutrition, Food and Drug Administration
5001 Campus Dr.
College Park, MD 20740-3835

Dear Mr. Keefe,

SierraRise, a project of the Sierra Club, has collected public comments from 24,535 individuals about the petition to remove ortho-phthalates as acceptable food additives (Docket ID FDA-2016-F-1253-0379). The list of individuals is on subsequent pages; the exact letter they signed is as follows:

I am deeply concerned about a class of toxic chemicals called ortho-phthalates that are used in food packaging, workers' gloves, and processing equipment. Ortho-phthalates can leach into our food and get absorbed by our bodies. Exposure to phthalates during pregnancy is linked to serious reproductive, developmental, and endocrine health problems.

Given the body of research on this topic, the FDA is justified in concluding that ortho-phthalates are a class of chemically- and pharmacologically-related substances, and that there is no reasonable certainty of no harm for allowing these chemicals to regularly come into contact with food. Following this finding, I urge the FDA to withdraw its food additive approvals for ortho-phthalates.

Thank you for considering this public input as your agency seeks to protect public health and uphold consumers' trust in our food system.

Respectfully,

Alexander Rony
Sierra Club
